

Internship - Shanghai

We have an immediate opening for an intern to join our Shanghai office.

Gain experience in research and project work done by full-time, entry-level research staff. Responsibilities may include collecting market, industry, company, and competitor information; building and using spreadsheet models and applying econometric analysis to economic and financial data; reviewing, summarizing, and analyzing industry trends; creating trial exhibits; drafting memos and presentation materials; and participating in team meetings and conference calls.

Candidates should have recently completed a masters or undergraduate degree in economics or finance and have exceptional analytic skills and strong academic records. Qualified candidates must be detail-oriented, have the ability to think analytically and critically, and possess excellent oral and written communications skills. All applicants must be business-level fluent in Mandarin Chinese, Japanese, and English and hold working rights for China.

To apply, please send your CV and cover letter to londonrecruitment@nera.com, referencing "Shanghai Internship" in the subject line of your email.
