Adrien Cervera-Jackson is an Associate Director in NERA's Antitrust and Competition Practice. He has advised clients on competition and regulatory matters across a range of sectors, with a particular focus on UK market studies/investigations and competition litigation. He has over 15 years of experience in the application of economics to competition policy and regulation with specific expertise in analysing economic issues in the broadcasting and telecommunications sectors.

Mr. Cervera-Jackson joined NERA from Ofcom, the UK communications regulator, where he was a Principal Economic Advisor focusing on the regulation of the BBC's impact on competition and Ofcom's wider regulation of public service broadcasting in the UK.

In his previous roles, Mr. Cervera-Jackson worked on merger control cases before the European, French, Scandinavian, Polish, and South African competition authorities. He also advised clients in a number of antitrust investigations and court proceedings involving allegations of anticompetitive agreements and abuse of dominance in France and the UK. In addition, Mr. Cervera-Jackson worked on damages and other litigation cases in France and the UK, as well as providing regulatory advice to clients in the broadcasting sector in several jurisdictions.
