Thomas Meyer is a trusted economist with over 25 years of transfer pricing experience. He provides expert analysis to multinational companies, law firms, and government agencies on a wide spectrum of transfer pricing issues involving tax planning, penalty documentation, cost-sharing arrangements, and advance pricing arrangements. His current projects include preparing expert reports and analyses for clients in anticipation of tax litigation, modeling cross-border transactions in the entertainment industry, and documenting intercompany payments for marketing and IT services.

Mr. Meyer provides economic and financial analysis of complex transfer pricing issues, including valuing the license of intangible property, intercompany services, and business enterprises. His work involves financial statement analysis, designing financial models, and presenting and documenting results in transfer pricing reports. Mr. Meyer has experience presenting to Appeals and has testified before the US Tax Court and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. His work spans industries including semiconductors, software, energy, and pharmaceuticals.

Prior to joining NERA, Mr. Meyer was a Managing Director at Horst Frisch. He was also a Legislative Correspondent for a United States Senator, where he worked on tax, business, and agricultural issues. He holds a Chartered Financial Analyst certification.
